Hi Valerie,

If you are unable to find anybody with public health background available (as the retired ones are probably subbing in Emergency rooms these days) I might be able to cover that. It is a topic that interests me. For example I know that Hanta Virus (normally in the deserts of the Southwest) has been in VT for about 4 years. It is not a subject I have training in, but my son (an Emergency Medicine doc) was the public health pointperson in his county. My granddaughter majored in Public Health and Wilderness Emergency Medicine (I think that's what it was called) and is looking for a college to do her Public Health masters degree. If PH questions come up I might be able to get answers from them.
