i. Note from James Cole: Hi Cris,

I can't make this month's meeting but I did want to pass on a thought that has been on my mind for a while.

The pedestrian signs placed in the middle of the street, like the ones near St Ambrose and on North Street, add awareness for pedestrians. However, they actually make the intersections less safe for cyclists. When drivers and cyclists pass through the intersection at the same time, vehicles cannot by cross the centerline to move away from the cyclist.

Just wanted to pass the thought along and see if maybe the committee had any thoughts on an affordable/effective alternative? Maybe two signs, one on each side which would allow vehicles to use the middle of the road?

Thanks. -James Cole

Will bring up to Ian; Sally mentions that this is a chance for bikes to signal/"take the lane"

Brad: Yield for cyclists

Sally: Any time she takes the lane, she waves
